

Audrey Doerr

Cet article examine le contexte des relations intergouvernementales en ce qui con-

Federalism and Aboriginal Relations 231 partnerships with the private sector is also noted to demonstrate how these activities, in turn, can strengthen the position of First Nations in their deal-
10	(
}
K	•
ì

· 业
.,
	-
	'
·
, ,
} =
-
	:

with the formal political processes of executive federalism. At the administra-claimant First Nations in those provinces. Provincial participation is needed, for the negotiations usually involve the transfer or purchase of provincial Crown

Many other examples of success stories of First Nation entrepreneurship and anterprise can be found. Annual Abortained and First Nation business award

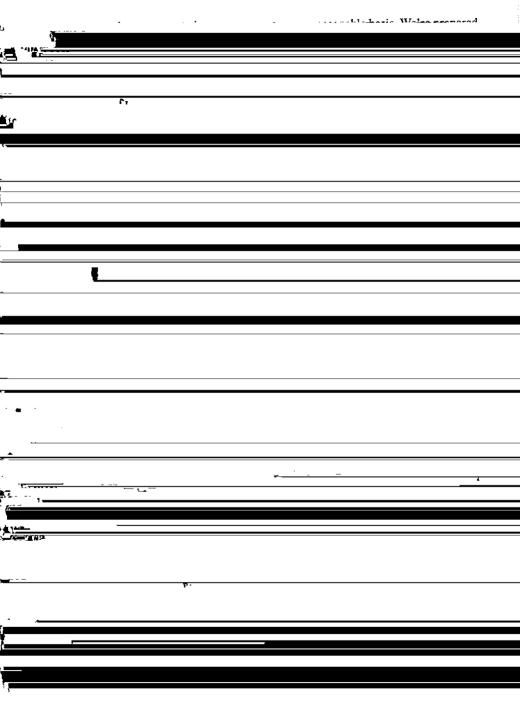

Alberta's Intergovernmental Relations Experience

Roger Gibbins

Cet article trace l'histoire du département des affaires fédérales et intergouverne-

Parliamentary institutions, it was believed, would inevitably reflect the demographic weight and hence economic interests of the central Canadian

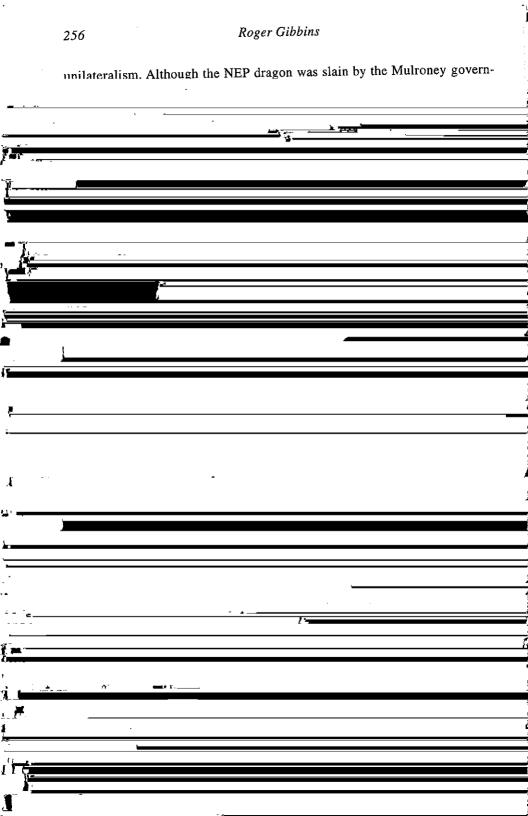

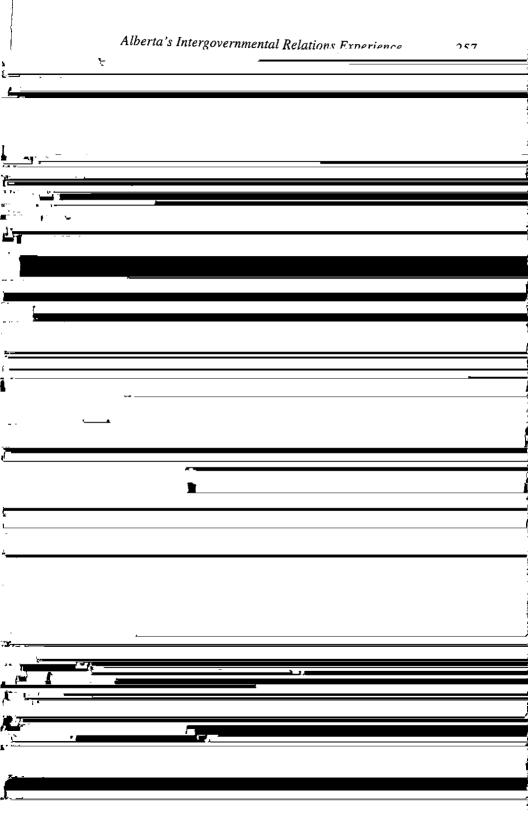

THE GETTY YEARS

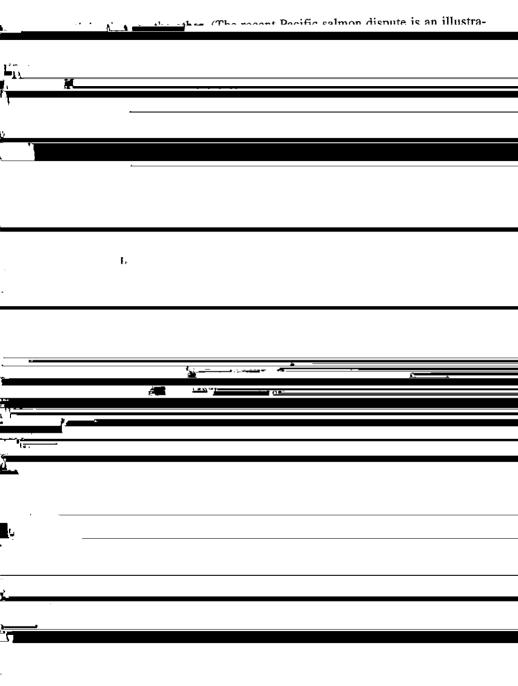

Given that there has been no change in Alberta's governing party since the 1971 election it is important to ask whether there was significant policy or

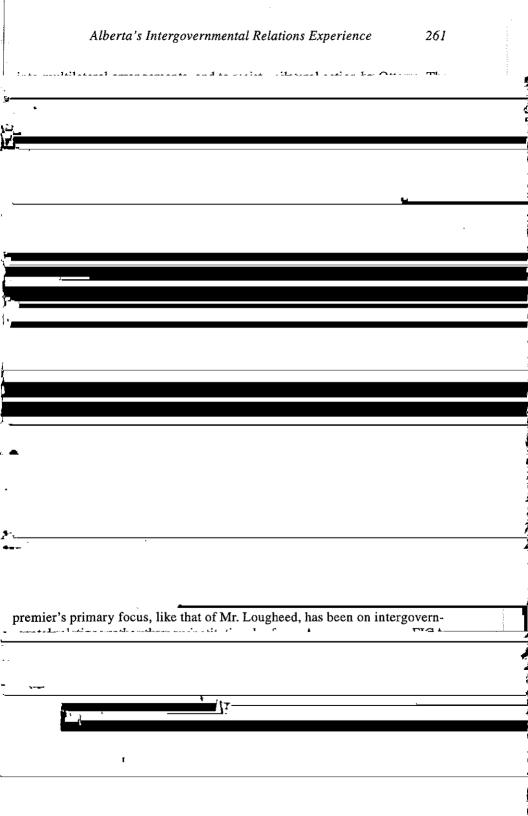

Alberta's Intergovernmental Relations Experience 255 governments was promoted as an alternative to unilateralism by the federal

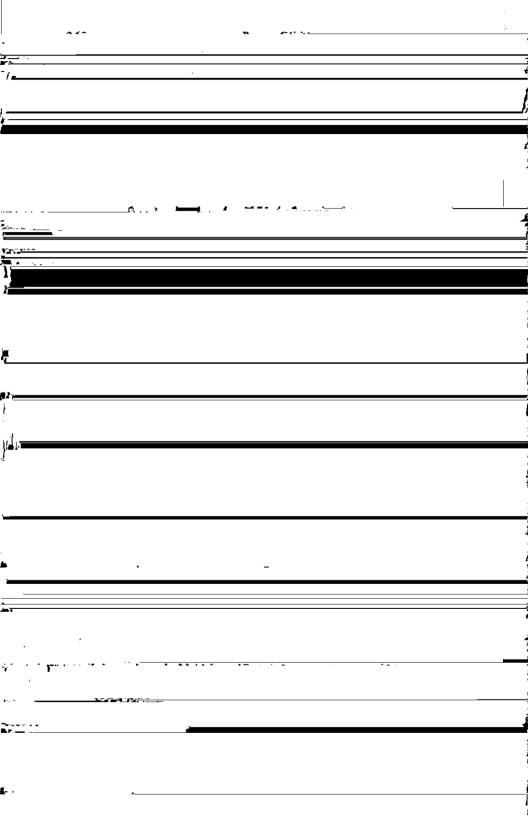

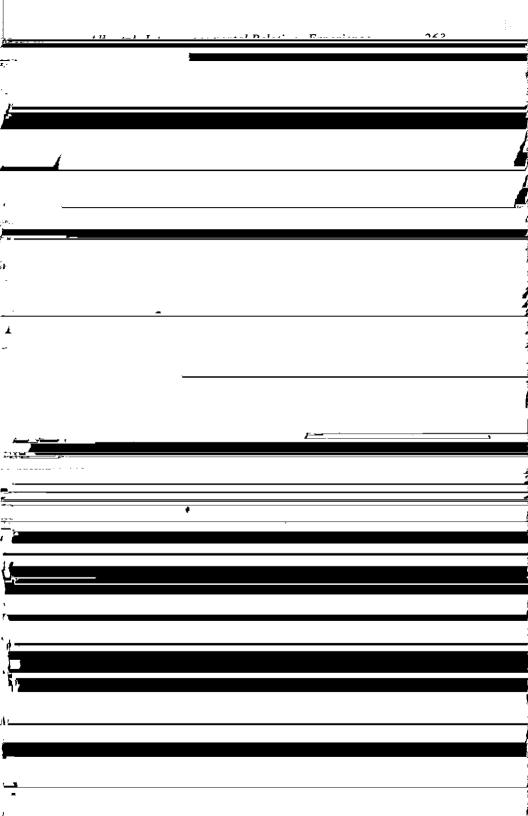

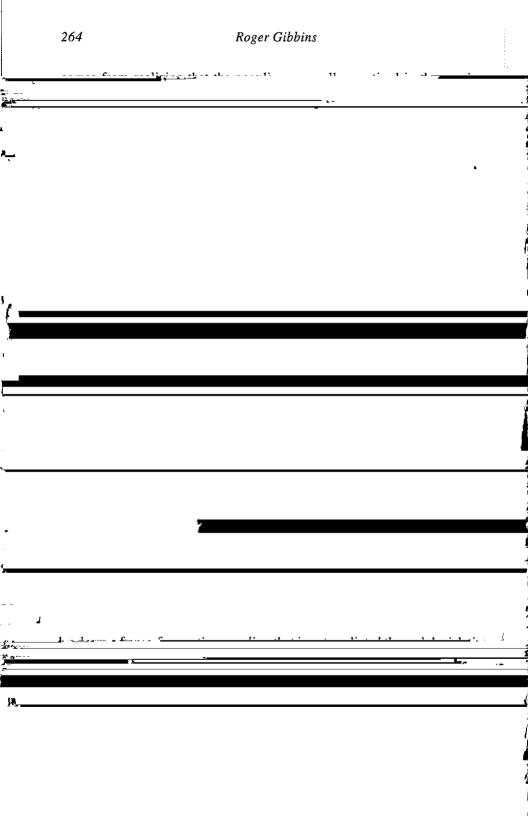

Throughout, Alberta has advanced a consistent set of themes: although both orders of government may remain active in some fields, there should be less

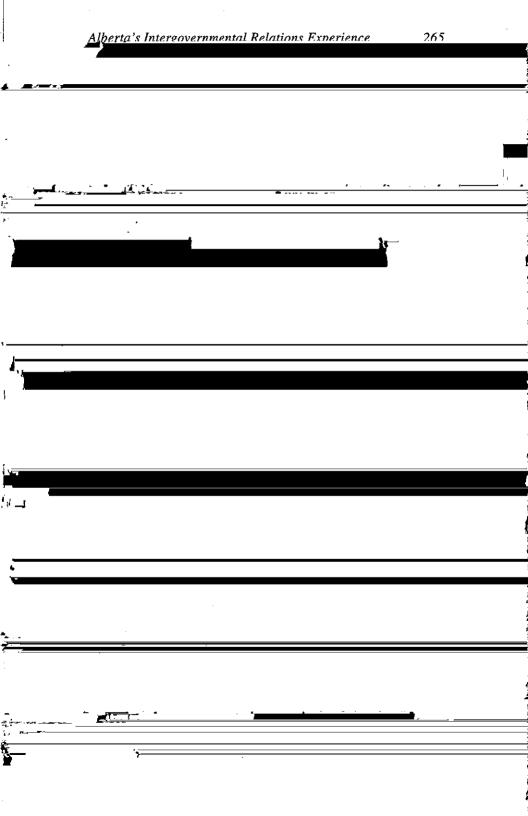

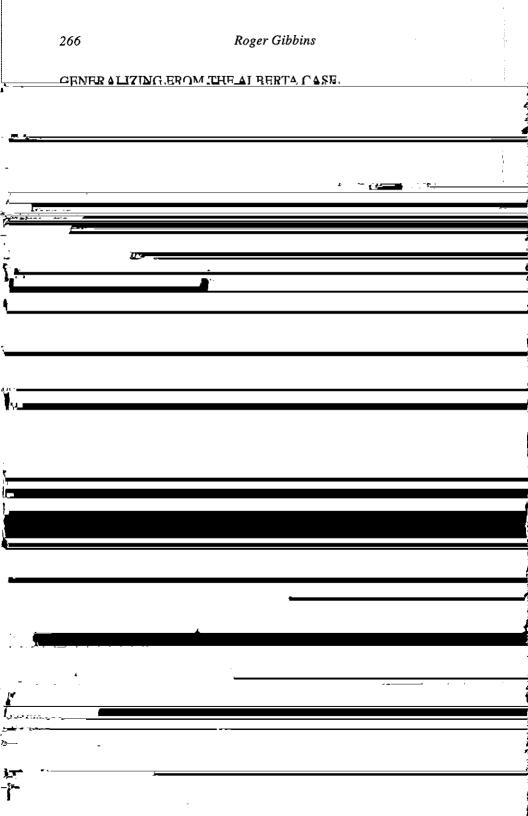

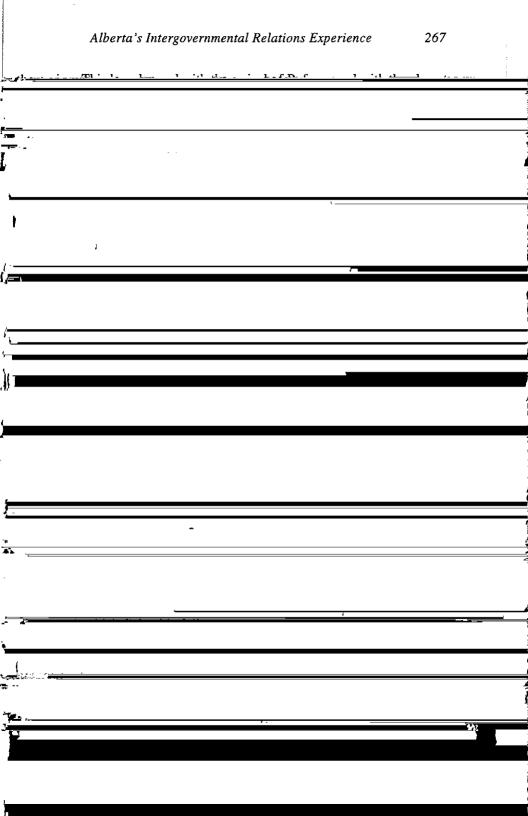

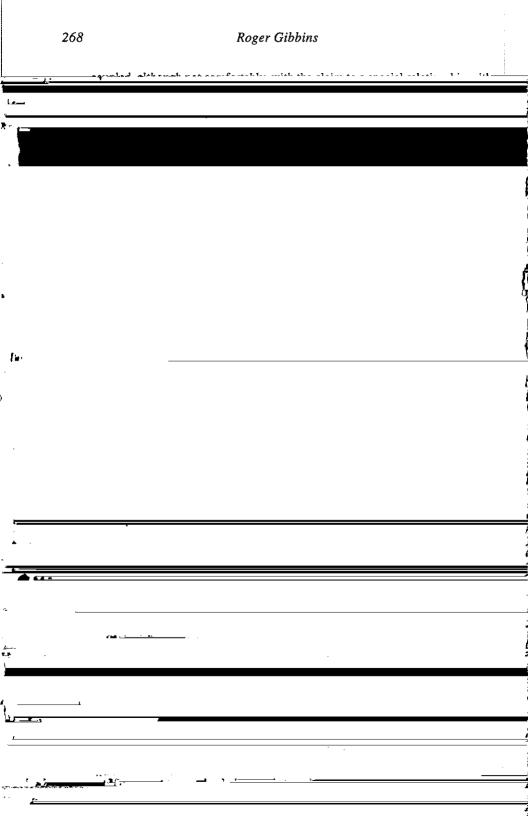

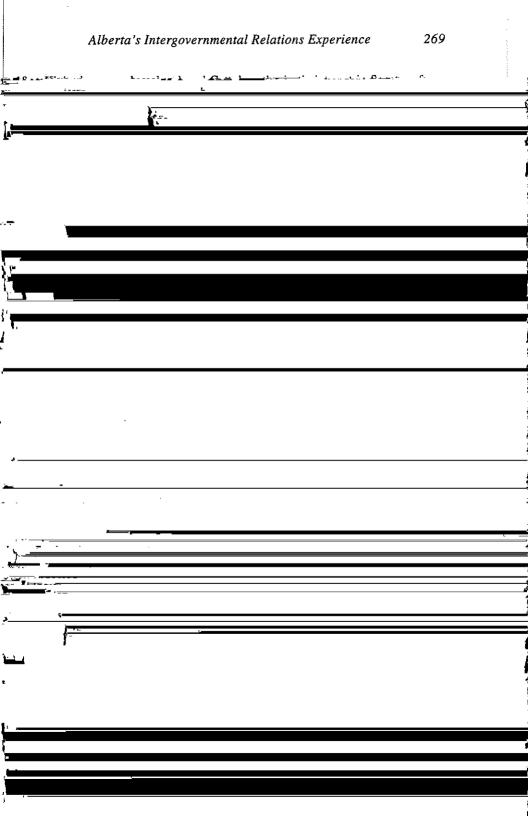

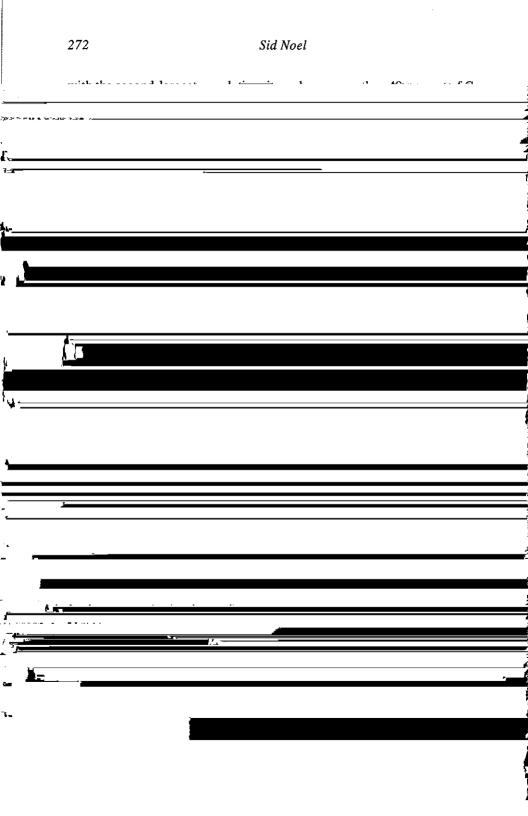

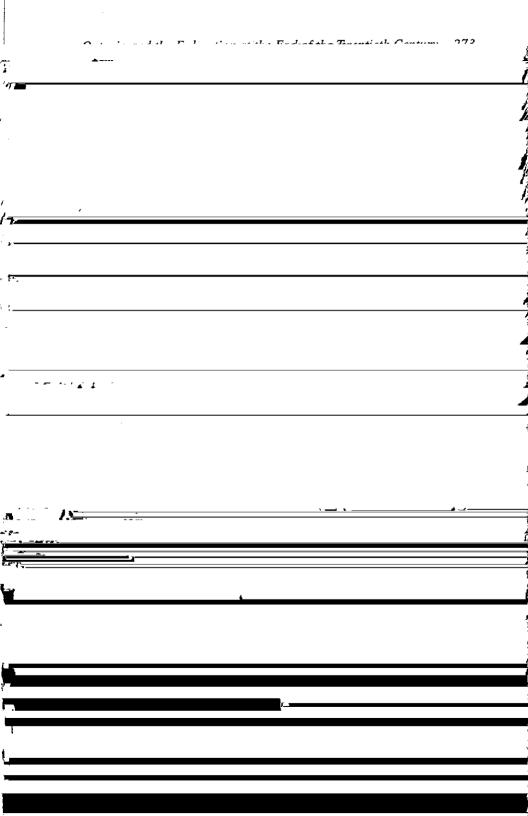

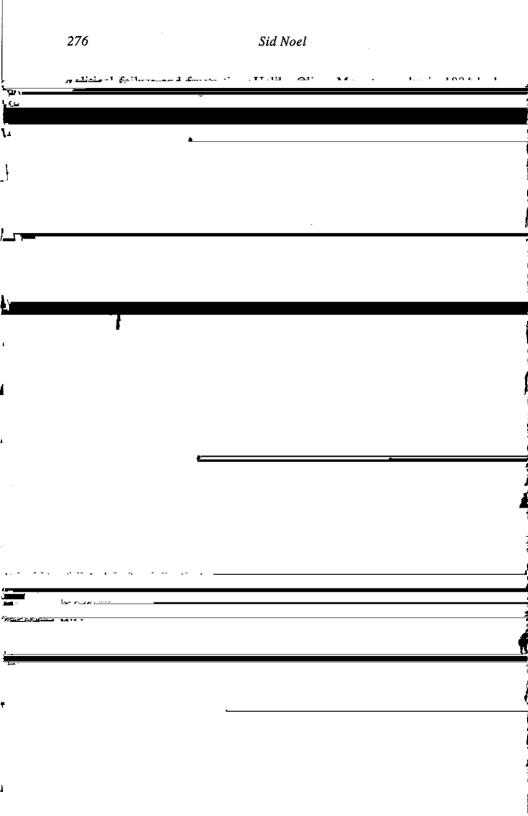

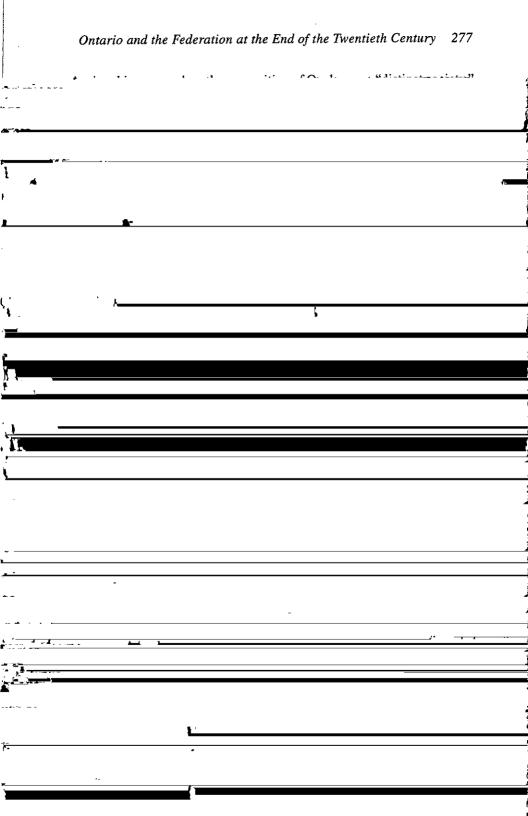

Ontario and the Federation at the End of 274 Sid Noel social bonds of Canadian union. Both Peterson and Rae had shown a degree Ontario and the Federation at the End of the Twentieth Century 275 size of the public service, and fundamentally restructuring the whole system

Ontario and the Federation at the End of the Twentieth Century 279 Ontario's political and economic interests were assumed to be practically suspect. The Ontario economy had drifted far toward economic integration

Ontario and the Federation at the End of the Twentieth Century 283 harmonization issue became entangled with the much larger issue of fiscal fairness. The federal proposal, Eves concluded in December 1995 (echoing Canadian nation remains strong, it is now being tested by their unresolved internal religions and religions and religions.

	Ontario and the Federation at the End of the Twentieth Century 29 i. The Globe and Mail, 15 August 1995, p. A3.
16
	• ·- ·	rs t	OPP NO		t deal	DAllan IIa	Ti a Ti
- 1
		/a=
-		.
						 	-

"Mr. Bouchard has quite adroitly played the gullible Mr. Harris for a sucker,"

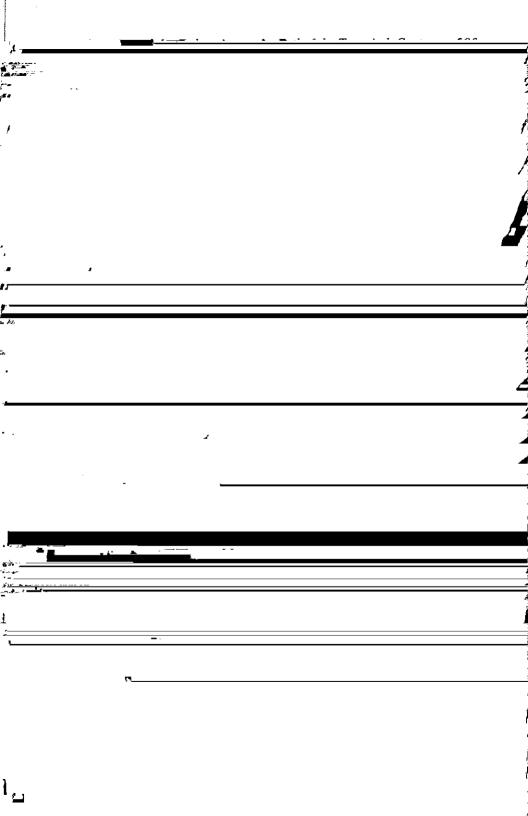

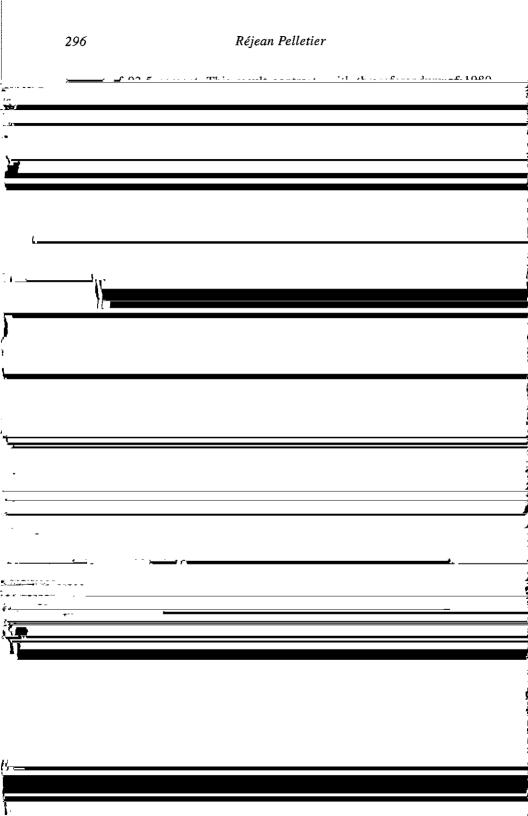

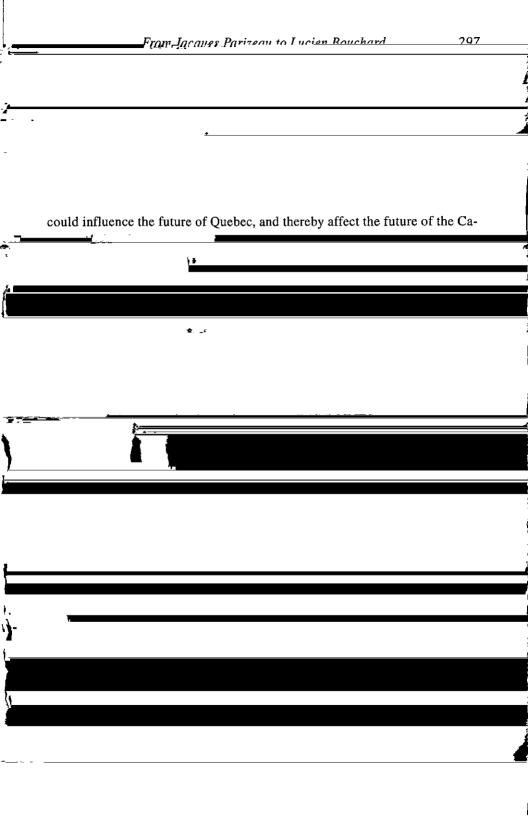

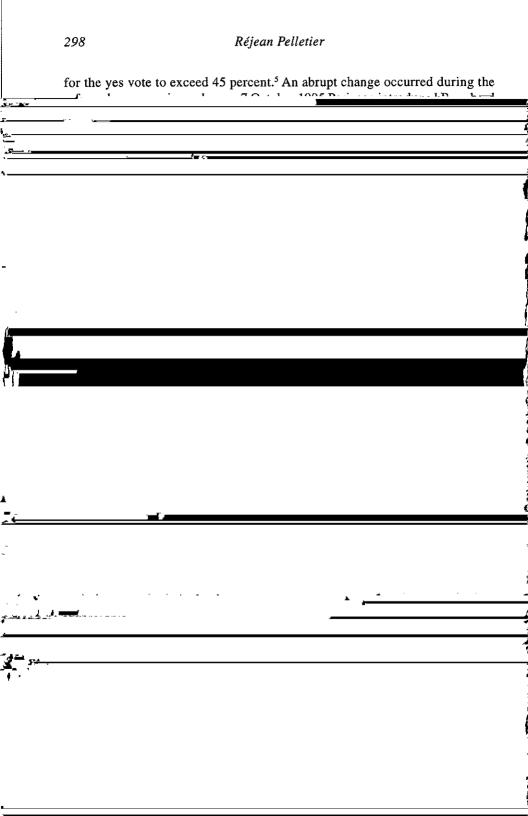

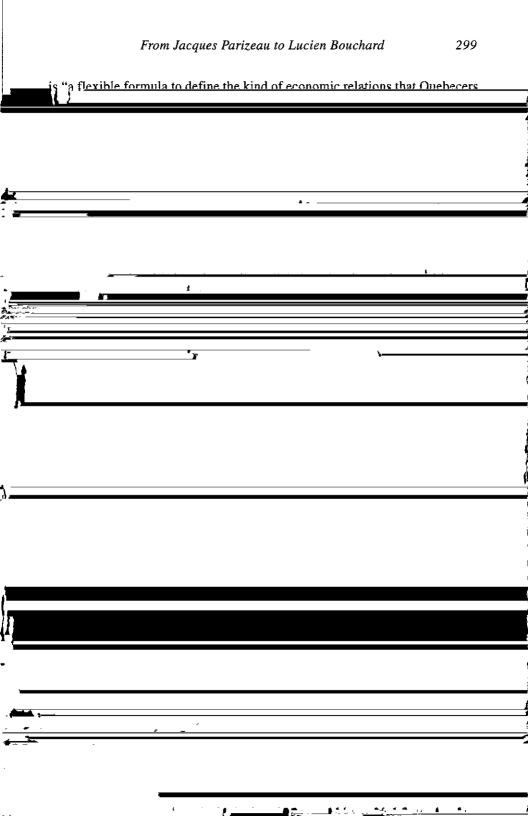

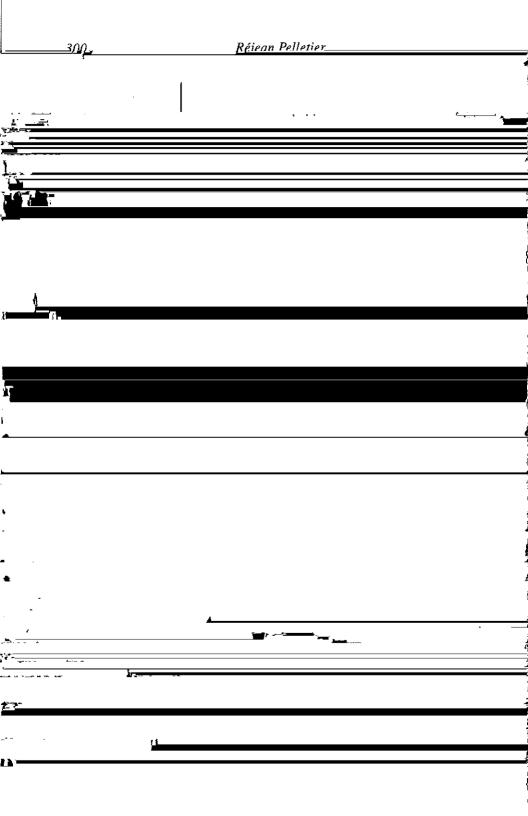

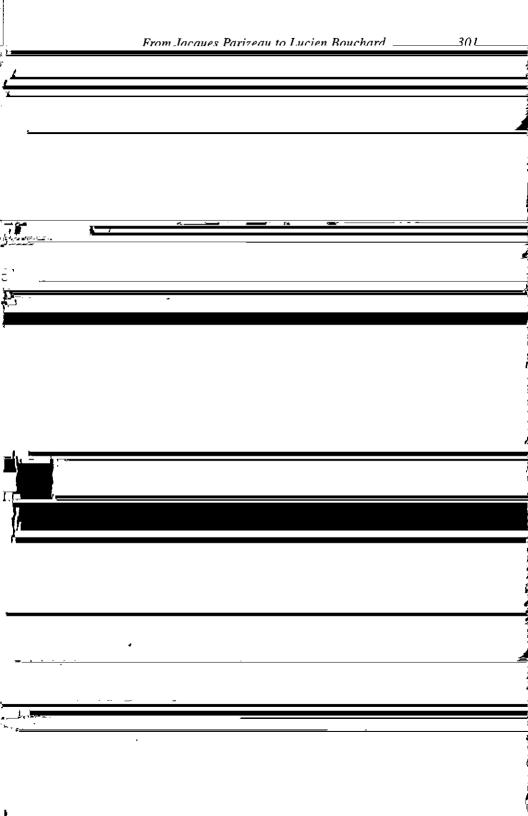

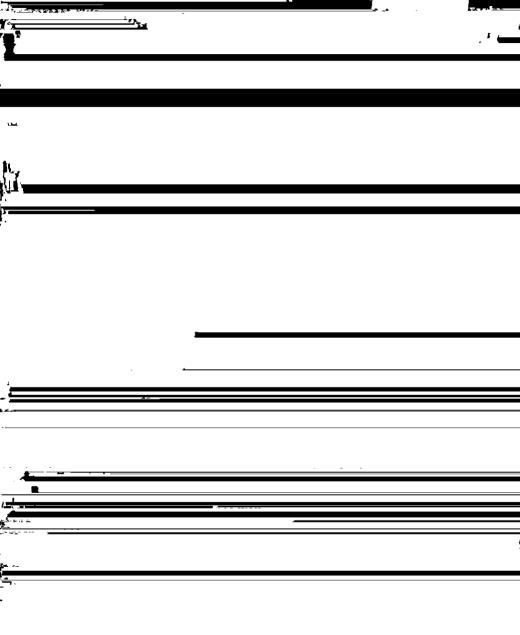

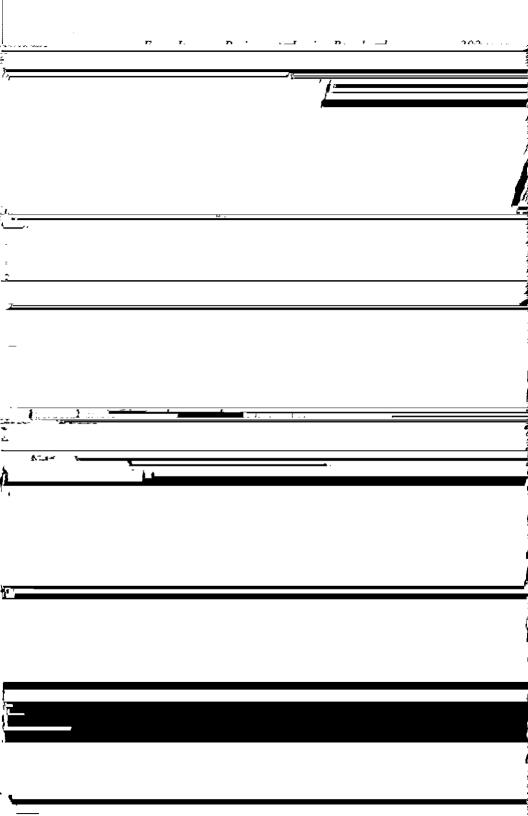

In keeping with this, fighting the deficit remains a priority — virtually an absolute necessity — for the Bouchard government, for two reasons. First, party members. Some of them viewed him, and continue to view him, suspi-government in the social sphere and its capacity to define and establish "national standards" in areas of provincial jurisdiction, provided that the provinces participate. Bouchard has completely rejected this approach on the grounds that the constitution designates the social sphere as within provincial

t

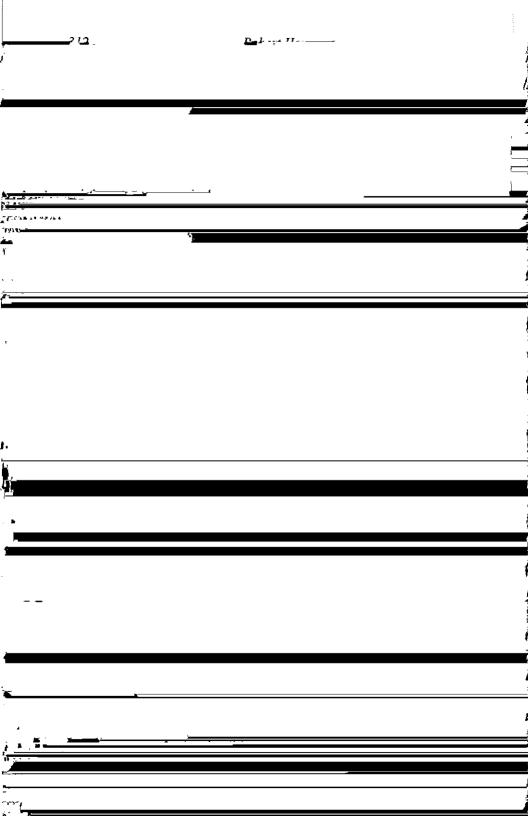

conciliatory, more open to agreements and more concerned with reaching an economic and political partnership with the rest of Canada. These two visions both enjoy support among Quebecers. But if Bouchard represents the softer

Searching for Plan A: National Unity and the Chrétien Government's New Federalism

	Searching for Plan A	313
	44.4	(1)	ŀ
in the mindset of meas-co	nstitutional nolitics. The governm	ent has success-	:
,
.
-	1		;
		_
 		-a r
,,	•
Trans (Calar

}			ĺ
}
7
}
7
3
3
	-

At least as a response to Quebec nationalism, this has been a self-defeating Present hermine rooted in language and culture french Ouches as a community

they must draw on some of the strengths that are likely to be exhibited by the associative community, particularly the use of universal frameworks of rights

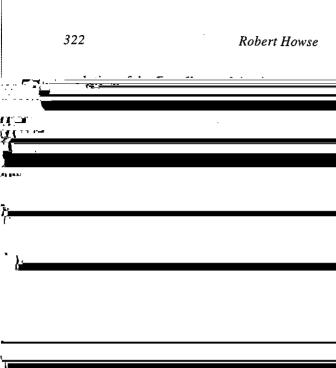

In policy and constitutional debates over the last decade or so, the connection between economic union and the idea of Canada as a community of

THE FEDERAL ROLE

Democratically elected by the Canadian people as a whole, it would be inconceivable if the federal government did not have a major role in evolving the institutions, norms, and policies needed to sustain and develop Canada as an acceptative community. As already suggested many of the federal govern-

Government a legitimate policy stake — provincially driven approaches might not satisfactorily reflect the need to retrain workers for jobs elsewhere in or retrained. Moreover, because the performance of the programs is defined provinces. The agency remains a federal entity, but also provides a forum for more effective links and joint initiatives with the provinces and indeed other interests in the shaping and reshaping of policy. But there are times when it will be more appropriate to engage directly with citizens or the private sector 11.

Indeed, there is a cosmopolitan position that goes further than Trudeau and ques-

- Will Kymlicka, Multicultural Citizenship (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1995).

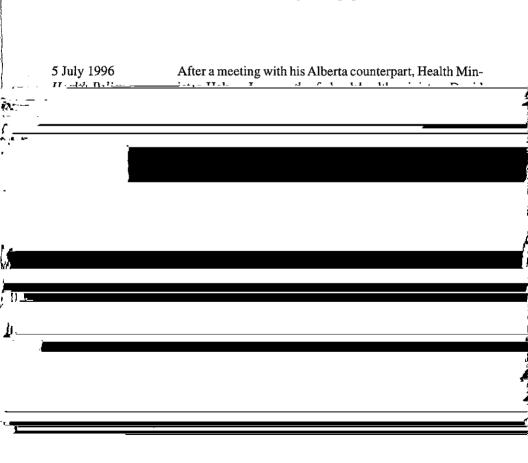

IV Chronology

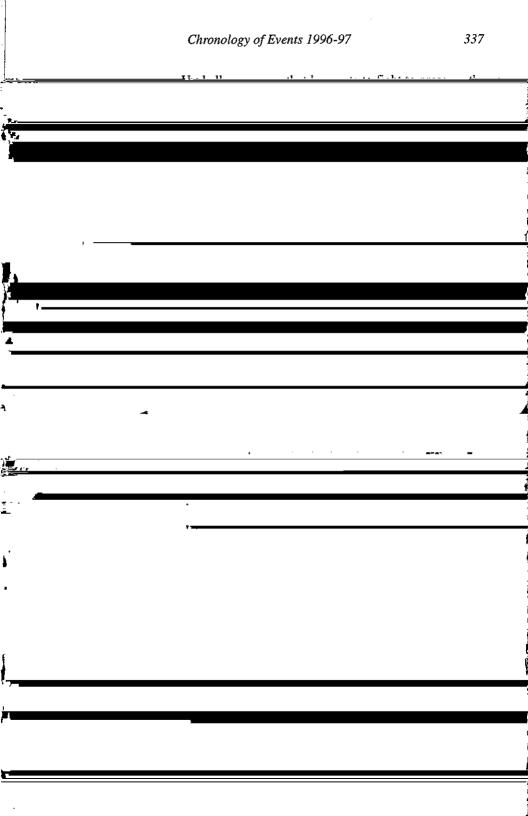

Chronology of Events July 1996 – June 1997

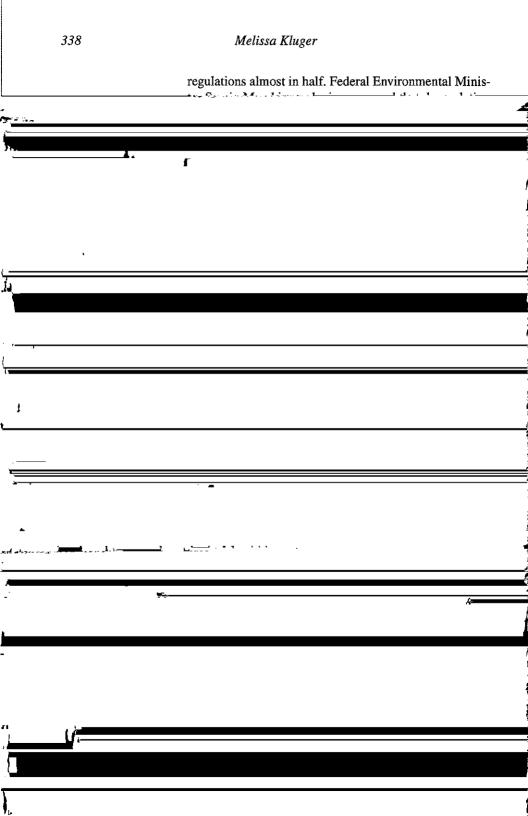

Melissa Kluger

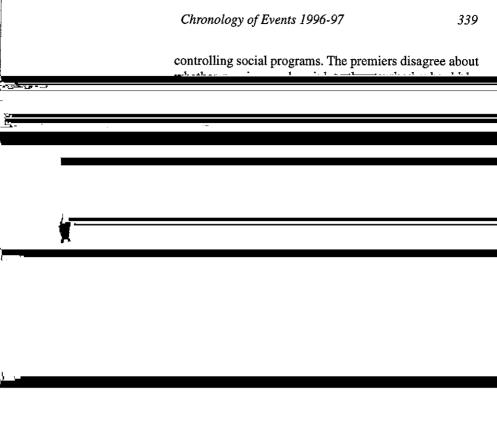

An index of these events begins on page 363

A federal panel proposes that the Wheat Board, which has a monopoly over Prairie grain sales, should continue to market all grains except feed barley, which should be

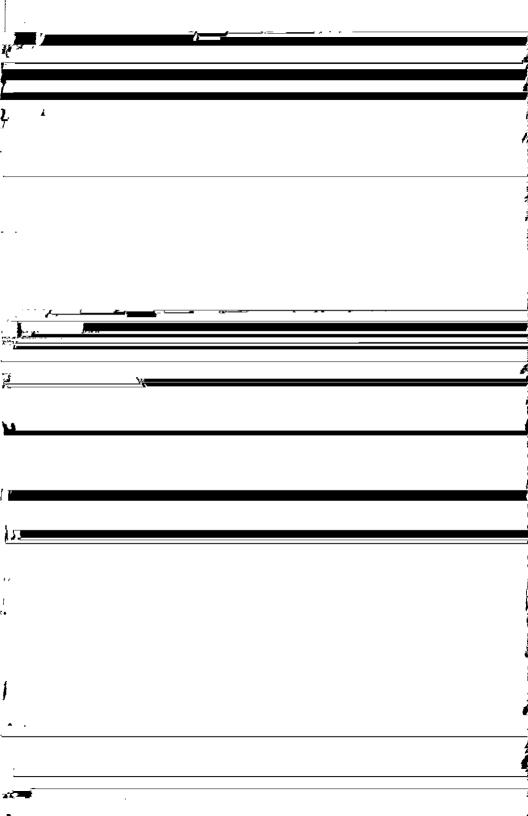

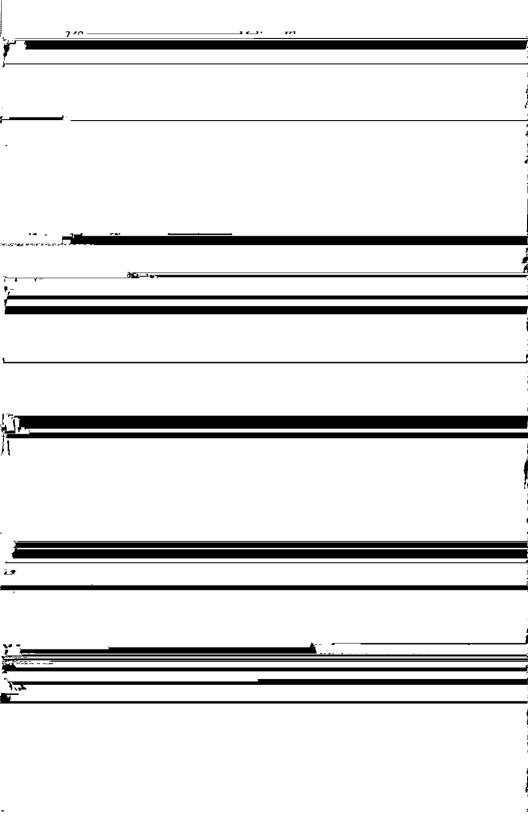

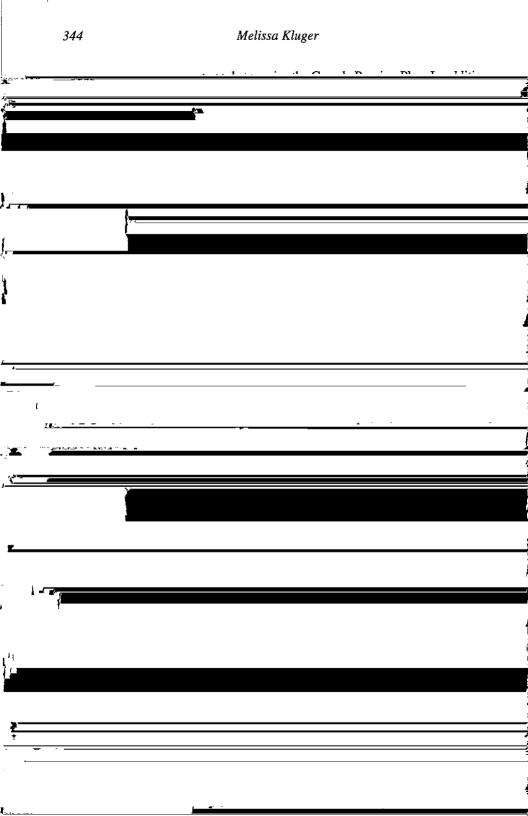

11 September 1996 Indian Affairs Minister Ron Irwin is accused by Chief

	Chronology of Events 1996-97 345
	salmon fishery workers who have been displaced as a re-2
,	· · ·
1
•
,		•
	-
r;
-
		4
4	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
,

10 January 1997 Of Industrial Quevelopment fi

17 January 1997

Ottawa lends Pratt and Whitney Canada Inc. of Longueuil, Quebec $147 million to enable the US-owned aerospace firm to maintain its engine production in Canada.

Ottawa and three Atlantic provinces try to sort out some amendment which would allow denominational school boards to be replaced by linguistic boards. The proposal

	352	Melissa Kluger
	7 February 1997	Alberta is the first province to sign on to the federal	l gov-
ę.	The state of the s
	1
•
(i) į
- 1			•
1

Chronology of Events 1996-97 353 21 February 1997 Quebec Premier Lucien Bouchard announces that he will Land the are to Land the district the state

