News and Updates

The second Research Development Day (RDD) will take place on May 2 in Mitchell Hall. RDD offers a chance for Queen's faculty members from across campus to come together to learn about and workshop common challenges faced during the research lifecycle. This year's event will feature a keynote workshop on knowledge mobilization, and sessions on increasing equity, diversity and inclusion in a research lab or group, the strategies and tools available for building a research profile, and funding opportunities available to enhance international collaboration.
